

Chapter 3

In the beginning of chapter 3 of the book "Maus", written by Art Spiegelmann, Vladek tells his son about the war between Germany and Poland in which he participated in 1939. He shot a German soldier and got put into a war prison. After suffering several months to hard work and cold nights, the prisoners get the chance to work at the front. Vladek takes this chance.

Sleeping again in cold temperatures, Vladek dreams about his granddad, telling him that he would come out of this place on the day of parshas truma. It actually happened: All the prisoners get put onto a train to Poland. It was the chance for Vladek to get back to Sosnowiec, but the train didn't stop there. It stopped in Lublin, where Vladek got off and during the night he got back to his family. Then after he got out of Lublin and went back to Sosnowiec.

At the end of the chapter 3, Artie gets upset because Vladek threw away his coat.
